The Faculty of Law is a hub of innovation, offering a dynamic curriculum that combines cutting-edge academic research with hands-on legal experiences to prepare students who are dedicated to the cause of justice and ready to make a difference in Israeli society.

According to Professor Oren Gazal-Ayal, Dean of the Faculty of Law, “Our goal is to develop global-minded lawyers who possess a broad concept of law, social compassion and professional competence, in all fields of law, from private law, to public law and business law. Our students are being educated to view the legal profession as a calling to serve others, and to create a more just Israeli society.”

Since its establishment in 1991, the University’s Faculty of Law has developed a reputation as a leader and pioneer in the fields of legal education and legal research in Israel. With several internationally recognized research centers and eight legal clinics that provide students with a meaningful clinical education, the Faculty of Law consistently ranks among the top rated law programs in Israel.

The Law Faculty’s legal clinics focus on a broad range of issues including rights of asylum seekers, environmental justice with a focus on the marine environment, legal issues faced by senior citizens, women’s rights, educational equality, housing rights, the rights of the Arab minority, and rights of people with disabilities. The legal clinics work on numerous high-impact cases each year – shaping policy and legislation that ensures human dignity, equality, tolerance, and democratic rights in Israeli society.

A generous gift of $10 million will enable the University of Haifa to dedicate the Faculty of Law in your name.
